

2023 NASS BUDGET VS FEDERAL UNIVERSITIES ALLOCATION

The #OpenNASS Campaign achieved its initial success on May 11, 2017, with the National Assembly releasing a breakdown of its 2017 budget. This was the first time the public would see a NASS budget in 7 years. It has been another 7 years without a public NASS budget.

Infrastructure within Nigerian universities are deplorable. To build Nigeria's future workforce, it is critical to channel more financial resources to the education sector.

In the 2023 fiscal year, the National Assembly increased its budget from 169 billion naira to 228.1 billion naira but the education sector remains underfunded. The highest allocation to a Nigerian university (over 30,000 students) represents 11% of the National Assembly budget (469 legislators).

National Assembly		N 228.1 bn
University of Nigeria, Nsukka		N 26.14 bn
Ahmadu Bello University, Zaria		N 23.91 bn
University of Calabar		N 21.57 bn
University of Benin		N 19.53 bn
Nnamdi Azikiwe University, Awka		N 18.95 bn
University of Ibadan		N 18.35 bn
University of Maiduguri		N 18.26 bn
University of Lagos		N 15.12 bn
Bayero University, Kano		N 15.08 bn
University of Port Harcourt		N 13.48 bn
Obafemi Awolowo University		N 13.4 bn
University of Technology, Owerri		N 12.89 bn
National Open University		N 12.88 bn
University of Jos		N 12.85 bn
University of Abuja		N 11.92 bn
Usman Dan Fodio University, Sokoto		N 11.8 bn
University of Ilorin		N 11.28 bn
University of Uyo		N 11.09 bn
Michael Okpara University of Agriculture, Umudike		N 10.05 bn
Federal University of Technology, Akure		N 8.38 bn

The life of an Active Citizen is a marathon not a sprint!

meet Office of the Citizen
CHATBOT
Your new assistant on civic engagement

Get started
Send "Hello" via WhatsApp to 017006381