

#NIGERIANLIVESMATTER

All Nigerian lives matter irrespective of ethnicity and religion. The incessant violent killings in many parts of the country have led to the deaths of thousands of Nigerians and many more have been displaced from their homes.

On Sunday, June 5th, Gunmen suspected to be terrorists opened fire on worshipers at the St Francis Catholic Church, Owa-luwa Street, in Owo, Ondo State killing over 40 worshippers and leaving scores of people injured.

The 1999 Nigerian Constitution (as amended) states that the security & welfare of the people shall be the primary purpose of government. It is time to hold elected officials accountable and say Enough-is-Enough!

President Buhari's Promises on Security

Muhammadu Buhari
@MBuhari

The responsibility of the Nigerian government is to protect and respect the lives of Nigerians, regardless of politics, or elections.

We cannot be the country that loses the essence of our humanity, the meaning of empathy. Nigerians are dying everyday due to incompetence.

Our government will protect all religious and ethnic groups in Nigeria, whether majority or minority, in line with our responsibility under the constitution. We will not allow any ethnic or religious groups to stoke up hatred and violence against other groups.

Our responsibility is to secure Nigeria for all Nigerians to be able to do their businesses without any problem. We haven't achieved that yet but we will keep on trying.
